

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Immediately thereafter, the property, described as "lying within the burgh of Glasgw, in the wynd which is called Rattounraw, between the land of Sir Maurice Starne, chaplain, on the west, and the King's Street, which is called the Weynd, on the east," was purchased by the abbot and convent of the monastery of Paisley. "brether crosses" are understood to have been farther north.

<sup>1</sup> See protocol No. 2131. Some particulars regarding Mr. Adam Colquhoun, who was successively rector of Kingarth, Govan, and Stobo, will be found in Sir William Fraser's "Chiefs of Colquhoun," ii. pp. 280, 285-8. "Mr. John Colquhoun, rector of Stobo," is witness to a protocol dated 13 October, 1558 (No. 1345), and he is likewise so designed in protocols dated in 1560-3 (Nos. 1368-9, 1404, 1473). In one of these protocols (No. 1404) it is stated that the proceedings took place in the manse of the rector of Stobo. "Mr. Archibald Colquhoun" is designated successor of the rectory of Stobo in a protocol dated 28 February, 1567-8 (No. 965), and in a charter dated in July, 1581, he is designated rector of Stobo (Reg. Mag. Sig. v. No. 292). The manse was probably feued by either John or Archibald Colquhoun to John Colquhoun of Kilmardinny, in whose family it remained till sold to Robert Cleland, merchant in Glasgow, from whom it was transmitted to Agnes Cleland (daughter of George Cleland of Glenhuff) and John Cleland, her husband, as mentioned in crown charter, dated 6th April, 1649 (Reg. 2684. GLEN—REID, SPOUSES. 13 March, 1584-5, 8 a.m.

Mr. John Allasoun and Margaret Lowthean, spouses, granted in feu-farm to William Glen, baker, citizen, and Jean Reid, spouses, a particate or piece of land next the seuch<sup>2</sup> of the Green, extending to 32 ells in length and 13 ells in breadth; part of two rigs of arable land, lying t.c., in the croft of St. Tenw, between the Green or common of Glasgow on the south and west, the lands of q. George Brownsyde on the east,<sup>3</sup> and

<sup>1</sup> On 23 May, 1513, Mr. Adam Colquhoun, rector of Stobo, was rentall in the 33 s. 4 d. land of "Wydsyd," vacant by the decease of Mr. Thomas Muirhead, his predecessor in the rectory of Stobo (Diocesan Registers, i. p. 48). On 20 December, 1515, the rental book records "Elizabeth Colquhoun rentellit in xxxij s. iiij d. land off Woydsyd, post obitum Magistri Ade Culquhoun" (Ib. p. 74). It is stated by Sir William Fraser, in "The Chiefs of Colquhoun" (ii. p. 269), that Elizabeth was the rector's daughter; and the entry in the rental book apparently means that she was to succeed to the lands on his death. Elizabeth Colquhoun married George Elphinstone, and on 28 August, 1534, he was conjoined "in rentale with his wef, Elizabeth Colquhoun, of twa merk land and half of the Wodesyd" (Ib. p. 104). On 7 March, 1555-6, George Elphinstone, second son of the first George, then deceased, was, with consent of his elder brother, rentall in the lands, "Besse Colquhoun, his mothir, brwkand for hir tyme" (Ib. p. 162). The elder brother, likewise named George (in accordance with a practice not then uncommon) was rentall in the lands of Gorbals in 1554 (Ib. p. 154; Protocols Nos. 185, 187, 490, 1486), and was feudally vested in both Gorbals and Woodside, under a charter granted by archbishop Boyd on 13 November, and confirmed by King James VI., 10 December, 1579 (Reg. Mag. Sig. iv. No. 2938). The rentall of Woodside was, perhaps, the George Elphinstone whose name, in conjunction with that of Marion Alderston, his spouse, frequently occurs in the protocols. In the above protocol (No. 2683) Woodside was again given to a younger son, but it reverted, as before, to the elder. George Elphinstone, who granted the charter mentioned in the text, died shortly afterwards (see No. 2707), and was succeeded by his eldest son, who, as Sir George Elphinstone of Blythwood, got a crown charter of the combined lands of Blythwood, Woodside, and Gorbals, on 27 August, 1595 (see MS. protocol by Archibald Hegate, 9 February, 1595-6). At present, part of Woodside is included in the Kelvingrove Park, and other portions are occupied by buildings and streets, the original designation of the lands being commemorated by Woodside Crescent and Terrace.

By a contract, dated 14 May, 1577, entered into between the magistrates and council and Archibald Lyon, then rentaller of a mill on the river Kelvin, he conveyed his right in that mill to the town, and, in return, he was infet in the town mill on the Malindinor in security of the yearly payment of certain bolls of grain during his lifetime, and after his decease, to his heirs, of 100 merks yearly, until lawful redemption by payment of 1000 merks. Episc. Glasg. No. 481). This was the beginning of the church or chapel sometimes called the Little Church of St. Kentigern, and frequently referred to in the protocols. On 11 January,

(11) an annualrent of 40 s., payable furth of a tenement belonging to James Tailzour, lying in the street leading from the South Port to the bridge, between the street on the north, and the burn of Malyndinor on the south; (12) an annualrent of 26 s. 8 d., payable furth of a tenement in the Bridgegait, belonging to John Bartoune, shoemaker; (13) an annualrent of 6 s. 8 d., payable furth of a tenement belonging to John Auldcorne, baker; and (14) an acre and a half of land adjacent to the Brumelands, held in feu of the rector of Glasgw. The properties and annualrents to remain vested in George Lyone and spouse till Archibald Lyoun (whose liferent of the whole was reserved) should, in his own person, redeem the same by payment of a ros noble. Sasine given by Robert Rowat, bailie. Witnesses: James Lyoune, Thomas Glen, David Glen, James Dalzell, Archibald Andirsoune, merchants, citizens, Alexander Baillie, Andrew Baillie, citizens, John Pattoune and Richard Tode, serjeants.

1504-5, when the erection was apparently being proceeded with, Coningham, acting as vicar general for archbishop Blacader, then abroad, required Mr. John Gibson, rector of Renfrew, as master of work of the church, to expend money and pay the expenses of small things about the church, as the previous masters of work had done (protocol No. 91 in Diocesan Registers). A chaplain, in succession to one who was deceased, was inducted on 24 September, 1513, by delivery of the keys of the church, the bell rope, book, chalice, and ornaments of the altar (Tb. No. 652). Subsequent to the Reformation, the endowments were, along with other church property and revenues, conveyed by Queen Mary's charter to the magistrates and council, and were thereafter transferred to the college (see Rental in Munimenta Alme Universitatis, i. p. 176). It is ascertained by the conveyance of 1595, afterwards referred to, that Archibald Lyon acquired the kirk and kirkyard by a feu-charter, and that charter was probably granted by the magistrates and council, as was done in the case of the collegiate church of St. Mary (protocol No. 1702), the chapel of St. Roche (No. 1674), and the church of St. Tenu (No. 2462).

On 19 May, 1593, the church of Little St. Kentigern and grounds, which had been conveyed by Archibald Lyon to his daughter Marion, and her husband Donald Cunningham of Aikinbar, were sold by the latter to the town at the price of 200 merks Scots, with the privilege to the sellers of nominating two burgesses for admission. In the conveyance the property is described as "the chapell and hows callit St. Mungois chaplanrie, with kirk yairde and pertinentis thairof, lyand in the east syde of the towne of Glasgw, beyond the Gallowgait

brig, betuix the landis of Dowhill on the north and the hie streitt on the east pairtis"; and the transfer is stated to be made "to the effect that the same chapell, hous and yairde may stand and [be] convertit in to ane hospitall for the puir to be foundit be the saidis provest, bailleis and counsale, and to na uther use in all tymes cumyng." There were also sold to the town "the treis, bolth growand and cuttit, about and in the samen, to be instantlie intrumettit with be the saidis provest, bailleis and counsale to the use of the said kirk" (Original Conveyance, Inv. i. b. 22). If an hospital was actually fitted up it must soon have been abandoned, because, on 2 February, 1600, the town council directed "the baill materiallis of stane, tymmer, and growand treis of Lytill Sanct Mungois Kirk" to be taken down and removed and used for the repair of the Tron Kirk, and the site to be feued to the highest offerer (Glasg. Rec. i. p. 202). The site, however, was not disposed of till 1754, when the council sold it for the erection of an inn, the famous "Saracen Head," well known in Glasgow annals. An absurd story, found in some Glasgow histories, to the effect that, through an act of vandalism on the part of the town council, the stones of the Bishop's castle were used in erecting the Inn, seems to have originated in a mis-reading of the MS. council minute. What the town council did in the way of providing building material was to authorise the purchaser to use the stones of the adjoining East Port, then being removed as an obstruction to the thoroughfare (MS. Council Rec., xxvi., p. 460). Further particulars regarding St. Kentigern's Kirk will be found in Glasgow Charters, i. pp. lix., clviii., dlixii.; ii. p. 454, No. 106.

Thomas Mille, chirurgion, and Elizabeth Robertoun, spouses, (with consent of John Colquhoun of Kilmarkdonie, proprietor of the tenement from which the annualrent aftermentioned was payable), sold to John Elphinstoun, son of q. <sup>1</sup> The property specified in No. 2706 appears to form the site of an ancient chapel adjoining the tolbooth, on the north side of the Trongait. This chapel is referred to in record as early as the year 1293 (Glas. Chart. ii. p. 20; protocol No. 1051, and footnote), and is likewise noticed in a document, dated 28 October, 1426 (Liber Coll. Nostre Domine, etc., p. 244), and in another, dated 16 June, 1487 (Reg. Episc. Glasg. No. 446). The chapel seems to have been acquired by the collegiate church of St. Mary and St. Anne, founded by James Houstoun, on the south side of the Trongate, as on 10 February, 1555-6, Sir Christopher Knox, chaplain and prebendary in the collegiate church, with consent of the provost and other prebendaries, and also with consent of the magistrates and council (patrons of the church), and the archbishop, granted in feu-farm to George Herbertsoun

The feu-duty payable to the chaplain and prebendary was 11 merks yearly. A crown charter of confirmation in favour of George Herbertson and spouse was granted on 4 March, 1583-4 (Reg. Mag. Sig. v. No. 680).

<sup>2</sup> The protocol Nos. 2606-7 and the above reference to quondam George Elphinstone, show that the proprietor of Blythswode had died between 24 March and 11 May. He was succeeded by his son George Elphinstone, who was knighted in 1594, on the occasion of the baptism of Prince Henry.

<sup>1</sup> For the reason here stated, the protocols in Archibald Hegate's first book end with No. 2740. On four of the remaining leaves in the book there has been collected some extraneous matter, of which particulars will be found in the Preface to last volume. Since that volume was issued, Mr. William Young, artist, who had noticed the sonnet printed on page xix., has shown the editor an edition of "The Cherrie and the Slae," and other poems, by Captain Alexander Montgomery, printed at Glasgow, in 1712, by Robert Sanders. At the beginning of the book is the sonnet referred to, and there called "A Sweet Sonnet to the Blessed Trinitie: by C. A. M." The author is thus identified as a west-country bard of considerable repute, whose works have often been printed. An edition of Montgomery's poems was issued by the Scottish Text Society in 1887. The poet is said to have been a son of the laird of Hazelhead, in Ayrshire, whose family at one time owned property in Glasgow, as shown by protocols Nos. 4, 1378, and 2742.

<sup>1</sup> The property in Stockuell Street, held of the knights of St. John of Jerusalem, is likewise referred to in protocols Nos. 42, 58, 929 and 1401. In connection with the transaction narrated in No. 1401, the nature of the jurisdiction exercised by the knights and their officials over temple lands receives illustration from an entry in the Glasgow Records. David Moresoun and spouse, the owners of the Stockuell tenement, had granted to Thomas Huchesoun an annualrent of 5 merks, payable furth of the property, and this annualrent having fallen into arrear, Huchesoun sued Moresoun in the burgh court for payment. Thereupon Robert Lindsay of Dunrod, who held a commission as "bailie to my lord Sanct Johnne of the haill templelandis," intervened, desiring that Moresoun, who was "ane tennent of my lord Sanct Johnneis," and subject to his jurisdiction, should be repledged to the court applicable to temple lands. This was agreed to, security was given for justice being done, and a court was appointed to be held by the temple bailie, in David Moresoune's house, for decision of the claim (Glasg. Rec. i. pp. 45, 46). Various interesting particulars regarding the Knights of St. John and their lands in Scotland will be found in a paper by Mr. John Edwards, published in the Transactions of the Glasgow Archæological Society, vol. iii. pp. 309-39.

<sup>1</sup> "Australem," as applied to the market cross, has not been noticed in any previous protocol, and in this case the word has probably been inserted through inadvertency. It is desirable that this explanation should be made in view of the statement current in some Glasgow histories to the effect that at one time the market cross was situated at the intersection of the High Street with Kottenrow and Drygate. This theory is wholly unsupported by extant historical documents, all of which indicate that the market cross, from the first, was placed in the position which it so long occupied at the foot of the High Street.

art" (Ib. p. 58). Milne appears to have attained financial success, as in 1588-9, he invested 1100 merks in the purchase of lands from the town (Ib. p. 126). For some reason, possibly in connection with the transaction referred to, Milne, in the following year, quarrelled with the town authorities, called the bailies traitors and deceivers, and slanderously alluded to "the hungrie toun of Glasgw." As a punishment for "his falt and grit sclander" the town council ordered him to appear at the cross and publicly confess his transgression, stopped his pension for a year, and resolved that any repetition of the offence should be visited with its permanent withdrawal (Ib. pp. 138-9). Andrew Mill or Mylne, whose name appears on the roll of members of the Faculty of Physicians, instituted in 1599, is supposed to have been a son of Thomas Milne (Duncan's "Memorials of the Faculty," p. 233).

<sup>2</sup> The "common" referred to in No. 2886 consisted of land lying along the north bank of the river, reserved for the use of the inhabitants in connection with the river traffic. (Glasg. Rec. i. p. 180). Transferred to the bridge the market was within easier reach of the town's folk, and probably better subject to the control of the magistrates, especially with regard to the collection of custom dues. In 1600, two inhabitants of Saltcoats, whose sails and boat gear the customs' tacksmen had seized at the Broomielaw, objected to the jurisdiction of the provost and bailies; and at the request of the town council the articles were restored to the objectors on their finding security to appear before competent judges (ib. p. 209).

Land possessed in detached portions, but in the same croft, was accordingly described as being in rin-daill. <sup>1</sup> The visitation of the "pest" in 1586 has been referred to in protocol No. 2799. There is a blank in the council records from 27 April, 1586, till 22 October, 1588, and accordingly the protocol No. 2926, which explains how the money raised to meet the extra expenditure occasioned by the pest was repaid, supplies information not otherwise procurable. When the records resume, in 1588, there is evidence that the town was again troubled with the epidemic, and for raising money at that time it was found necessary to sell part of the common lands (Glasg. Rec. i. pp. 118-20).

In protocol No. 2799 reference was made to sasine being given on the public street because access could not be had to the property on account of the pest. John Wilson, the owner of the property, was at that time kept in seclusion, as appears from an entry in the MS. Council Records, dated 9 December, 1586:—"In presens of John Grahame, baille, compeirit John Wilsoun, peuterer, burges of Glasgou, and becaus that the said John wes enclosit with his wyif and famelle in his awin hous, as suspect of the pest, and mycht nocht, be his awin deid and resignatioun, (infett) Mergrat Wilsoun, his dochter, in all and hail his foire tenement, heycht and laicht, with the pertinentis, lyand upone the north syde of the streit callit the Gallowgait. . . . <sup>1</sup> The division of common lands referred to in Nos. 2944 and 2948 appears to be that described in a letter dated 6 April, 1589, written by William Walker, steward to archbishop Betoun, in which he tells his master that "al the borrow muir of Glasgw, on the south syde of the towne, and als Garngadhill on the north part of the towne, ar distribut be provest, baillies and communitie of the towne to the inhabitaris thairof, every ane his awin portiou conform to his degrie" (MacGeorge's Old Glasgow (1890), p. 177. See also protocol No. 1606 and foot-note). Previous to 1589, Garngadhill appears to have been possessed by the inhabitants as common property, and they must then have considered that it would be more advantageous to have the land parcelled off and converted into individual holdings. The council records for that period are wanting, and accordingly it is all the more fortunate that Walker's letter and the protocols have preserved evidence of the division.

Gordown was also bound to keep to the utmost the inhabitants of the city in drying their grain and oats in the kiln, as often as need required, and that on the charges of the citizens and inhabitants. And if, through the fault of Gordown and his heirs, the citizens and inhabitants should cease to come to the kiln with their grain and oats to be fired and dried (inconfectis et siccatis), in that case the former should be bound to pay the dry multure for the said grain and oats so abstracted from the said kiln. Gordown and his heirs were also bound to build the said kiln sufficiently within a year and a day, which if they failed to do, then and in that case this sasine of feu-farm should wholly fall and be of no strength, force or effect.<sup>1</sup> Witnesses: David Hall

<sup>1</sup> On account of there being a blank in the series of council records at this time the full terms of the act and ordinance referred to in No. 2964, cannot be ascertained. The common mill and kiln on the Malvindinor burn have been noticed in protocols Nos. 949, 1607, and 2701, and relative footnotes. In 1577 a sum of £188 18 s. 10 d. was paid by the town to "the maister of work, and to

<sup>1</sup> The Herbertsons appear in the protocols as owners of land in Dowhill as early as 1536 (see No. 1233). Rind daill has been explained in footnote to No. 2889.

<sup>2</sup> As narrated in protocol No. 1734 the subdean's manse was acquired by Mr. David Cunningham and Katherine Wallace, his spouse, in the year 1570-1. Cunningham held the subdeanery for a few years previous to 1577 when he was appointed bishop of Aberdeen (see footnote to protocol No. 842). The above protocol (No. 2996) shows that the right in the manse transferred by Archibald Betoun to Jedeon Murray in 1582 (see protocol No. 2433) consisted of a wadset or security for borrowed money. It is probable that after redemption of the wadset the bishop disposed of the property in the manner intended to be set forth in the next protocol (No. 2997), which, however, has not been completed. The draft of a feu charter (likewise incomplete), of which an abstract is printed in the Appendix (No. 3021), indicates that the property was conveyed, or intended to be conveyed, to Margaret Boyde in liferent.

charter effected nothing more than a bestowal of revenues, of which, however, the archbishop was deprived by the act of parliament (1587 c. 8) annexing such temporalities. See further as to Erskine's possession of the archbishopric, in Glasg. Charters, I. pp. 126, 134-6.

Thomas Mure, merchant, citizen, procurator and in name of John Chalmeris, fisher, citizen, with consent of David Howie, dyer, citizen, resigned

<sup>1</sup> No. 3013 is the last protocol in Archibald Hegate's second book. On the leaf following the completed MS. the notary thus plously expresses his gratitude:

"Finito libro; sit laus et gloria Christo
Et tribuenda Uni gloria summa Deo."

A. HEGATE."

—The book is finished; praise and glory be given to Christ, and the highest glory to the one God.

There is likewise this prayer: "The Lord half mercie upone me and forgif me my sinis and iniquiteis that I half committit against the. So be it."

From the other writing on the leaf the following memoranda may be quoted:

"Sexto die mens Januarij, 1588. Matho Hereot is seist in the play alker and alker in Provansyde, boundand. etc. Witnesses: John Huchessoun, younger in Kenmure, in favour of Robert Gartlugie, shoemaker, citizen, and Elizabeth Eistoun, spouses, and l.l., a back nether house and cellar, with yard adjacent thereto, lying t.c., on the north side of the Bridgegait, between the lands of David Howie on the east, other lands of Robert Gartlugie on the south, the lands of James Braidwod on the north, and the lands of John Mure on the west.

ARCH. HESATH.
Vol. II. fol. 134.

Stephane Glasgw, burges thar, and Thomas Diksoun, serjeant. And that be John Robertoun, baillie to the suddene of Glasgw."

"Tertio Novembris, 1596. Alexr. Hammlitoun of Hagis oblist him nocht to dispoñe the tak of the trone by (i.e., without) the college advyse." As will be seen by Glasgow Charters, pt. II. p. 456, No. 113, the college granted a tack of the tron to Hamilton on the day mentioned.

A mutilated scrap bears reference to the payment of 54s. for "wyne gevin" to some person or persons and "uther nobill men . . . as Sir William Stewart . . ." An order is given by "Robert Rowat and William Cunynghame," bailies, in these terms:—"Ye sall geiff James Lyounis wiff ane writting to Robert . . . pay ten pundis ix. s. for ane denner in the Simmerhill . . . the provest and us and the consell the said day." The annual celebration at the "Simmerhill" is referred to in one of the footnotes to protocol No. 2248.

Amid much disconnected scribbling there is this Latin quotation:—

"Non satis est mundum cōtemque accedere mensam, Ni probus in cunctis conspiciare locis."

—It is not enough to go clean and well mannered to table; you must show yourself an honest man in every place. There are also frequent repetitions, in fragments, of the following lines:—

"In my defence God me defend,
And in my mister God me send,
And gif my handis grace to mend,
And bring my saull till ane guid end."

At the beginning and end of the protocol book there are several pieces of paper, of varying sizes, embracing the documents printed or summarised in the Appendix. Included in the collection are some small slips on which are written what appear to be exercises in Latin composition, corrected by the examiner. The names of the composers, probably students in the college, are appended to the slips, except in one or two cases where the paper is mutilated. One of the slips has been cut in such a way as to sever the lower half of the name, but from what remains it appears to be decipherable as Archibald Wilson. Taken in alphabetical order, the preserved names are:—Robert Cunynghame, John Donyng, Alexander Dowglas, William Dunlope, major, Andrew Hammlitoun, Claud Hammlitoun, Robert Harbertsoun, William Jhonstoun, James Lausoun, William Livingston, John Lorne, Robert Lyndsay, Hector M'Caug, David Mathie, James Provan, Patrick Schelis, William Spang, Thomas Walker, Archibald Wilson, and John Young.

Of these curious exercises the following specimens (in which the examiner's x marks the errors) are given, and one is reproduced in facsimile. Owing to some of the papers having been cut at the edges, words in many cases are wanting or incomplete. The same sentences are dealt with in all the exercises, excepting in that of John Lorne, which is in the form of a letter:—

. . . Nequitia nostra celari non potest quæ nos sollicitat plurimis miseros modis. Neo quoloquam melius est nobis ut opinor quam capere magnam operam et laborem uno tempore ut citius possumus liberari ex hoc carcere: loquax autem ne existimer tacebo et tamen vos oro reminisci hujus . . . nihil quod nos facimus celari potest.

column. At the foot of the first column the paper is torn, with the loss of apparently two and perhaps more names. A list of hammermen made up in 1605 consisted of twenty-nine names. A few of these names are identical with those in the above list, and they include Allane Clark, perhaps the hammerman whose surname has disappeared. (See list in Crawford's History of the Trades House, p. 54).
